VICTORY DOUSING: Former Nagoya Mayor Takashi Kawamura of the Conservative Party of Japan is showered with water in Nagoya, central Japan, on Oct. 27, after winning a House of Representatives seat in a general election. Kawamura has traveled to Little Tokyo a number of times for the Nisei Week festival when he was mayor.

NEW WORKERS: A growing number of major Japanese firms are beginning to cater to the needs of new recruits who are worried about what roles they will be assigned to, for fear of losing talent. The emerging trend is a pushback against Japan's practice of leaving new graduates in the dark about the place of work, job responsibilities and other details until they join their new company. "Haizoku gacha," a phrase describing uncertainty surrounding job assignments, has become a buzzword in Japan, as young people liken it to vending machines for capsule toys known as "gacha-pon" or "gacha-gacha" that keep people guessing what is inside a capsule until they get one.

UNRULY TOURISTS: A government survey released Friday showed that over 85% of respondents are concerned that the increase in foreign tourists visiting Japanese national parks could lead to more instances of bad manners and rule-breaking. At 85.8%, the top response in the multiple-choice component of the Cabinet Office survey prompted an Environment Ministry official to say, "We will work to promote awareness and measures for proper use" of national parks. The survey, conducted at a time when some areas of Japan are grappling with rising traffic congestion and overtourism, also revealed positive sentiments, with 45.9% having "expectations for economic results," the second-highest response.

FILM PRODUCTION TAX CREDITS: Gov. Gavin Newsom has pitched a proposal to more than double the tax credit the state offers to producers of films and TV shows that shoot in California. Appearing with industry union leaders Sunday, Los Angeles Mayor Karen Bass and State Sen. Anthony Portantino (D-Burbank) and Newsom announced a plan to boost the annual tax credit from its current $330 million to $750 million, which would represent the largest amount offered by any state except Georgia, which has no cap on its credits. The plan, which still needs approval by the Legislature, could take effect as early as July 2025.

5th Annual Furbaby Lovefest Held in Gardena

The fifth annual Furbaby Lovefest, a fundraiser for the nonprofit Infinite Love Animal Rescue, was held on the Gardena City Hall lawn on Oct. 6.

This year's "Superhero" theme was celebrated with a furbaby costume contest, free and low-cost pet care and wellness services, creative workshops, dog yoga, pet adoptions, an art contest for kids, vendor booths, as well as presentations to the organization's founder and executive director, Kandace Kuwahara.

Kuwahara received certificates of recognition from both the City of Gardena and Assemblymember Al Muratsuchi of the 66th District for the many services she has offered through her organization:

Over 1,000 dogs and kittens have been rescued from the streets, shelters and owner surrenders.

Infinite Love Animal Rescue also provides necessary medical treatment and socialization for rescue animals towards successful adoptions. It offers valuable resources for pet owners and prospective adopters at the annual Furbaby Lovefest and at Furbaby Social events.

Kuwahara has also supported a spectrum of community needs. She delivered a donation of over 140 boxes of dog and cat food to the City of Gardena's Human Services Department to provide assistance to residents struggling to feed their pets due to financial hardship or concerns about going out during the COVID health crisis; she has coordinated blanket drives for five animal shelters in L.A. County; and she has assisted with over 50 trap-and-release (TNR) cases for multiple cat communities, helping maintain public health through humane efforts.

Last month, Kuwahara organized donations of pet food and supplies to help animals impacted by the Crestline fire.

As a former professional humane educator for SpcaLA, Kuwahara has taught over 1,000 children "dog safety, pet responsibility, and kindness toward all animals" at local elementary schools, City of Gardena programs, Girl Scout troops, and after-school programs.

During the Furbaby Lovefest,

Kuwahara honored the organization's "superheroes," dedicated volunteers and supporters. Daryle Krier, Courtney Gulick, Julie Nystrom and Hubie Fuh were recognized "for their outstanding dedication to the animals and continued growth of Infinite Love Animal Rescue"; Russ Nomura and Yoshiko Oest sponsor the Furbaby Lovefest Costume Contest and make a donation to Infinite Love with every property sold through their real estate agency, Live South Bay Local; and Dr. Ronaldo Joey Vasquez, head veterinarian at North Figueroa Animal Hospital in Los Angeles, provides medical care for Infinite Love's rescue animals.

Infinite Love Animal Rescue has expanded each year since 2017, when Kuwahara founded the organization, inspired by her late dog Boo, a Jack Russell/chihuahua mix rescued from the SpcaLA Hawthorne shelter. "He taught me that love is infinite and eternal, and I wanted to honor that."

PM Ishiba Seeks Party Unity After Crushing Defeat of LDP in General Election

KYODO NEWS SERVICE

TOKYO — Prime Minister Shigeru Ishiba, president of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party, called for intra-party unity on Monday in the wake of a crushing defeat in the general election that could make it difficult for him to remain as leader of the government.

The LDP's election strategy chief Shinjiro Koizumi resigned to take responsibility after the LDP and its junior coalition partner Komeito party lost its majority Sunday in the House of Representatives.

The LDP has begun talks on how to sustain Ishiba's government ahead of a special parliamentary session to elect the next premier. Opposition parties have ruled out participating in the current coalition Cabinet.

Meanwhile, the main opposition Constitutional Democratic Party of Japan, which increased its number of lower house seats, is also exploring ways to join hands with other forces, aiming to bring about a change of government.

The ruling coalition secured 215 of the 465 seats in the lower chamber, a sharp drop from 288, falling short of Ishiba's goal to retain a majority. A special Diet session must be held within 30 days following the lower house election under the Constitution.

Ishiba, who only took office on Oct. 1, had initially considered convening the special parliamentary session on Nov. 7, but his government is likely to revise the plan to allow more time to try and form a majority for the prime ministerial vote, sources close to the matter said.

In another development, the leaders of the two opposition parties, which are traditionally supported by Rengo, the Japanese Trade Union Confederation, met with Tomoko Yoshino, head of the country's largest

State Agency Investigating de León Re-election Campaign Donations

CITY NEWS SERVICE

The California Fair Political Practices Commission has launched an investigation into a nonprofit's donations to Los Angeles City Councilmember Kevin de León's re-election campaign, according to a Los Angeles Times report.

An anonymous written complaint to the agency alleged the contributions from World Harvest Family and Charity Services may have violated a state law against "pay to play" schemes or so-called "money laundering," The Times said.

World Harvest has a $1.91 million city contract, granted through de León's office, to distribute food to homebound seniors and low-income families in the councilman's district, which includes Boyle Heights, Downtown Los Angeles and parts of Northeast Los Angeles.

On Friday, World Harvest was among the organizations honored by the Los Angeles City Council for helping to reduce local food insecurity.

The councilman has also appeared at food giveaway events with World Harvest representatives and is prominently featured in its outreach efforts.

The November complaint alleges de León received $6,900 in contributions from the wife and daughter of World Harvest founder and CEO Glen Curado and seven employees, The Times reported.

The state commission sent a letter to de León and his re-election committee in November informing him of the allegations and inviting him to respond, The Times report said.

David Meraz, a campaign consultant for de León, told the newspaper

Relatives of Fallen LAPD Officers Condemn Council Candidate's Anti-Police Comment

CITY NEWS SERVICE

Relatives of fallen Los Angeles Police Department officers Sunday condemned the remarks of City Council candidate Ysabel Jurado, who was caught on tape saying "F-- the police" during a college forum. The Los Angeles Police Protective League, which organized Sunday's news conference, has demanded an apology and urged Jurado to withdraw from the Nov. 5 election against incumbent Kevin de León.

"I think an apology at this point would be political, it wouldn't be genuine, because if she was genuinely apologetic it would have come immediately after her remarks and it hasn't," said Melissa Swailes, wife of Officer David Swailes, who died by suicide, according to the union.

"Still to this day from what I'm aware, she has not apologized, so at this point, it would be meaningless," Swailes said.

Jurado's campaign did not immediately respond to a request for comment from City News Service.

In a statement issued to KTLA, Jurado said, "I understand the pain that families feel after the loss of a loved one, and I have deep respect for anyone who has lost someone in the line of duty. We can honor the memories of fallen officers while also pushing for accountability and equity in policing, and real investment in our communities."

"What I'm hearing from voters is a desire for new leaders who will take a fresh approach to public safety because what we've been doing clearly isn't working. That's what we're focused on, and we won't be deterred by attempts to take us off course."

Angela Mendoza, the girlfriend of Officer Fernando Arroyos who was shot and killed while the two were looking at houses to buy, called Jurado's comments "a slap in the face because he was murdered just

Global Fans Filled With World Series Excitement

Ohtani is cleared for Game 3 after Yamamoto’s pitching gem gives Dodgers 2-0 lead.

By MIKEY HIRANO CULROSS
RAFU SPORTS EDITOR

As The Rafu was being set up for the printing presses on Monday, that sigh of relief you heard echoing through Los Angeles came after word that Dodgers star Shohei Ohtani was expected to play in Game 3 of the World Series.

When the lineups were announced for the third matchup in the best-of-seven series, the star designated hitter was in his customary leadoff spot as the Dodgers were looking to extend their 2-0 lead.

“Today feels better than yesterday, and our assumption is tomorrow’s going to feel better than today,” Roberts said at the Dodgers’ off-day workout in New York on Sunday. “So with that, that’s what I’m banking on.”

The team and fans alike were holding their collective breath after Ohtani left the field in pain at the end of the seventh inning of Game 2 on Saturday. After sliding awkwardly into second base, Ohtani remained on the ground in obvious pain and could be heard on television telling the trainer that he had injured his left shoulder.

The injury was described as a “slight left shoulder subluxation,” a partial dislocation of the shoulder joint.

After the Dodgers held on for a 4-2 victory on Saturday, Roberts said he was initially encouraged by the strength and range of motion Ohtani was exhibiting with the shoulder.

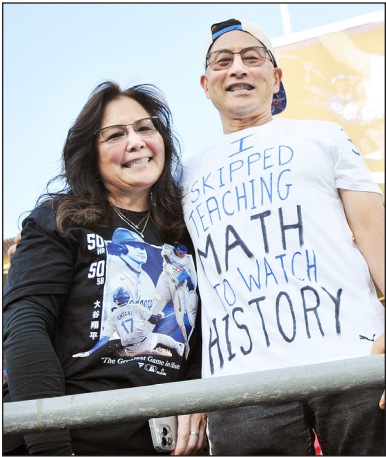

By Sunday afternoon, Roberts appeared more confident in Ohtani’s fitness.

“If he is able to play, willing to play, he’s going to play,” Roberts said.

The Dodgers find themselves halfway to a championship after Yoshinobu Yamamoto pitched into the seventh inning on Saturday, allowing just one hit – a solo home run by Juan Soto – in a strong pitching performance in his career World Series debut.

“I was trying to focus on facing one hitter at a time, so I was able to throw a strike when I wanted, and I was concentrating on being able to face the hitters one at a time,” said Yamamoto, who had his longest outing since June, when he was equally effective against the Yankees.

The right-hander, whose first start in the majors was a disaster against the San Diego Padres in Seoul, has been showing what the Dodgers were banking on when they signed him to the richest-ever contract for a starting pitcher.

Utility man extraordinaire Tommy Edman continued his exceptional playoff performance on Saturday, scoring the Dodgers’ first run on a second-inning solo homer.

He earned his second win this postseason, striking out four, walking two, and saying the key to his success Saturday was keeping calm and collected on the mound.

With one out in the top of the seventh, Roberts lifted Yamamoto, who walked to the dugout to chants of “Yoshi! Yoshi!” from the sellout crowd at Dodger Stadium.

“I think the cheers from everyone in the crowd made me perform better than I would have otherwise,” he said.

The Dodgers took the lead on a solo home run by Tommy Edman in the second inning. After Soto tied the game in the third, Teoscar Hernandez and Freddie Freeman hit back-to-back shots to give the Dodgers a lead they would not relinquish.

“Yoshi was really, really good today,” Edman said after the win. “He was on the attack. Watching from center field, it was fun to see how much his stuff was moving. Really did a good job keeping them off balance and just did a great job of pitching. That’s a good lineup, and to give up only one hit over 6-1/3, it was really impressive to watch. He’s one of the best pitchers in the game.”

Edman, who was recovering from a wrist injury and didn’t play in a major league game until August after being traded to the Dodgers, was asked about going from inactivity to playing on baseball’s biggest stage.

“Yeah, it’s definitely everything I could have imagined,” he said. “This is what you work for as a baseball player. You grind your whole life, take thousands, if not hundreds of thousands of swings of batting practice, just constantly working, working, working.”

This is the first meeting of the storied franchises in the World Series since 1981. Games 3, 4 and 5 (if necessary) are at Yankee Stadium beginning Monday. If needed, Games 6 and 7 would be back at Dodger Stadium.

While a marquee bi-coastal series is a boon for the broadcast rightsholders, the excitement has spread far beyond Hollywood and the Big Apple.

In Japan, watch parties have sprung up across the country, in spite of the 16-hour time difference from Los Angeles. When the games begin at around 5 p.m. here, it’s 9 a.m. in Japan.

The early local start time has apparently done little to dampen the enthusiasm. Major League Baseball announced Game 2 drew an all-time record of 15.9 million viewers there, the largest-ever TV audience for an MLB playoff game in Japan.

That’s more than 10 percent of the country’s entire population.

Locally, gatherings included showing the games at previously-scheduled events. At the annual Haunted Little Tokyo event on Saturday, the game was projected on large screens and walls above the Halloween revelry.

And it’s not only Ohtani. Not just one of the rosters including a player of Asian heritage. Those who are through two games making major contributions include Asian players at the top of the story.

Edman has been a revelation for the Dodgers. Yamamoto is doing exactly what was hoped by the Dodgers, who are managed by the Okinawa-born Roberts.

There have been several other Nikkei players in the Fall Classic, including Roberts – sort of.

Playing for the Red Sox in 2004, it was his steal of second base in the American League Championship Series that ignited the rally that led to Boston’s first World Series title in decades. He was on the reserve roster for the Sox in the championship but did not play.

The distinction of being the first Japanese player in a World Series belongs to Tsuyoshi Shinjo, who was an outfielder for the San Francisco Giants, who lost to the Angels in 2002.

Yu Darvish is well-remembered for his Game 7 meltdown with the Dodgers in the scandal-tainted loss to the Houston Astros in 2017.

The 2009 World Series was a grand stage for Hideki Matsui, who led the Yankees to a title over the Philadelphia Phillies. “Godzilla” batted .615 (8-for-13) with three home runs and eight RBI, including a record-tying six RBIs in Game 6.

Others from Japan to appear in a World Series include Norichika Aoki (2017 Kansas City Royals), So Taguchi (2006 St. Louis Cardinals), Tadahito Iguchi (2005 Chicago White Sox), Kazuo Matsui (2007 Colorado Rockies), Akinori Iwamura (2008 Phillies) and Yoshi Tsutsugo (2020 Tampa Bay Rays).

Of course, this year’s Series had a stunner of an opening on Friday.

Precious few know the experience of rounding the bases after hitting a game-winning home run in the playoffs or the World Series.

Rick Monday knows.

“You don’t feel the ground beneath you,” said Monday, whose ninth-inning homer against Montreal propelled the Dodgers into the 1981 World Series against the New York Yankees. “It’s like running on a cloud.”

The list of players who know the feeling grew by one on Friday, as Freddie Freeman rocketed a 10th-inning grand slam to give L.A. a 6-3 victory in Game 1 of the 2024 World Series ... against the Yankees.

It’s the first time in major league history that a World Series game has been won on a walk-off grand slam, and it came in the first meeting of these two legendary clubs in the Fall Classic since Monday’s Dodgers toppled New York for the championship 43 years ago.

Trailing 3-2 in the bottom of the 10th, the Dodgers had the man they wanted at the plate. Having already delivered a double and scored a run in his first World Series appearance, Ohtani came to the plate with two runners on base and one out.

Shohei Ohtani’s foul-out in the 10th nonetheless advanced two runners on base, prompting the Yankees to walk Mookie Betts and set the stage for Freeman’s heroics.

The Japanese star took a mighty swing, but only managed to loft a slicing foul ball toward the seats down the third-base line. Yankees outfielder Alex Verdugo made a sprawling, tumbling catch that recorded an out but also sent him into the stands. Having left the field of play with the ball, both runners were allowed to advance to second and third.

With the Dodgers down to their last out, Betts, whose earlier sacrifice fly to center had tied the game at 2-2, was intentionally walked to get to Freeman. It was a sensible calculation for the Yankees; they had lefty Nestor Cortes on the mound to counter the left-hand-hitting Freeman, who for the last month has been hobbled by a nagging ankle sprain.

Freeman gave full credit to his father, Fred, for starting him on the path to Friday’s magical moment.

Freeman wasted no time launching himself into Dodgers postseason lore. He jumped on the first pitch from Cortes, a low line-drive shot that cut through the cool, light October mist into a sea of delicious Dodger faithful in the right-field pavilion.

It bore more than just a passing resemblance to Kirk Gibson’s “miracle” home run in Game 1 of the 1988 World Series. On the Friday broadcast, announcer Joe Davis borrowed the immortal line from Vin Scully on that occasion: “She is ... gone!” Davis added, “Gibby, meet Freddie.”

“It’s arguably one of the ... greatest baseball moments I’ve ever witnessed, and I’ve witnessed some great ones,” said Roberts following the breathtaking win. “As the inning started, you’re just trying to think about getting Shohei to the plate. Once they decided to walk Mookie, I just felt good with Freddie at the plate. And just that swing, you knew it was gone.”

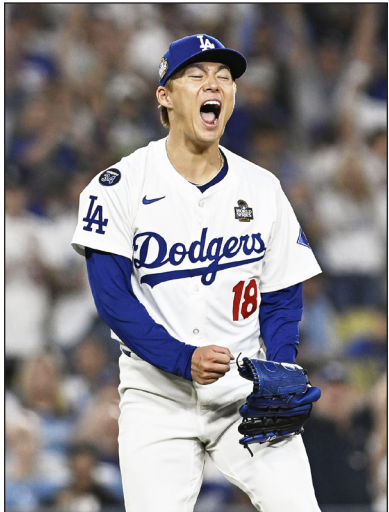

Freeman did his best to describe the surreal experience after the game.

“Those are the kind of things, when you’re five years old with your two older brothers and you’re playing Wiffle ball in the backyard,” he said. “Those are the scenarios you dream about – two outs, bases loaded in a World Series game. For it to actually happen and get a home run and walk it off to give us a 1-0 lead, that’s as good as it gets right there.”

Shortly after rounding the bases, Freeman ran to the seats where his father, Fred, was seated, trying his best to give a hug through the protective netting behind home plate.

“It was kind of spur of the moment. I saw him hugging a lot of people back there,” Freeman explained, appearing to hold in emotions at one point. “So all the batting practice, all the relentless hours we spent together on a baseball field, we still do it in the off-seasons together. He still throws me batting practice.”

“I just wanted to share that with him because he’s been there. He’s been through a lot in his life too, and just to have a moment like that, I just wanted to be a part of that with him in that moment. That’s mostly his moment because if he didn’t throw me batting practice, if he didn’t love the game of baseball, I wouldn’t be here playing this game. So that’s Fred Freeman’s moment right there.”

After languishing for six losing seasons with the Angels, Ohtani has openly shown his excitement at having the opportunity to play in the postseason. His first game in the World Series was certainly one for the ages.

“We managed to get the best way to win a game in the opener, thanks to a great home run,” Ohtani said. “Both starters began the game wonderfully and it was a good win for us, pitchers included. We hope to keep this momentum and play a good game again tomorrow.”

Edman, fresh off his MVP performance in the National League Championship Series, had two hits, including a double, and scored a run. He was still in shock well after the win on Friday.

“That was incredible,” Edman said, shaking his head. “I still can’t believe it.”

FEMA's Temporary Housing for Wildfire Survivors Extended

HONOLULU — At the request of the State of Hawaii, the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) has approved a one-year extension of the Individuals and Households Program (IHP), including financial assistance and direct temporary housing assistance for survivors of the Maui wildfires.

The 18-month initial period of assistance for FEMA IHP was set to end Feb.10, 2025 but has now been extended to Feb. 10, 2026.

"I thank FEMA for its flexibility and attention to helping Lahaina recover and rebuild, guided by the voices and values of the people of Maui," said Sen. Mazie Hirono (D-Hawaii).

Under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act, FEMA may extend the period of assistance due to extraordinary circumstances. Last year's wildfires caused unprecedented damage to Lahaina and impacted numerous households, businesses, communities and the infrastructure on Maui.

because of who he was, what he did, which was to be an LAPD officer. They are humans and the anti-police rhetoric needs to stop."

During an Oct. 17 meeting with students at Cal State Los Angeles, a man who identified himself as a 14th District resident asked Jurado for her thoughts on police spending. Jurado responded with the "F-- the police" lyric from a 1988 protest song by the defunct Compton hip-hop group N.W.A.

"As someone who is myself pro-abolishment of police, where do you stand on that spectrum and what do you think about Kevin de León's discretionary fund spending on overtime for police," the student can be heard asking before Jurado's response: "What's the rap verse? 'F-- the police,' that's how I see 'em.'"

CBS2 later reported that the man works for de León, Jurado's opponent, but is also a student at Cal State LA.

Jurado later defended her his client has not done anything wrong regarding the contributions.

"Our campaign has always been transparent and in full compliance with the law regarding donations," Meraz said.

Curado told The Times that the investigation was "stupid" and that no one from the state agency had reached out to him.

FEMA is working closely with the state, local officials and volunteers to help survivors in temporary housing find permanent solutions. Disaster case managers are also providing personalized assistance.

FEMA approved the direct lease as a form of direct temporary housing assistance in September 2023 and currently has 1,194 households occupying FEMA-provided units.

During the extended period, survivors who continue to live in a FEMA-provided temporary housing unit are generally expected to work on their permanent housing plan and start paying rent, depending on their financial ability. The rent amount would be based on the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) fair market rent.

FEMA will send occupants an advance notice of the rent requirement.

Occupants who provide documentation of their post-disaster income that meets or is below HUD's very low-income limit will qualify for fully reduced rent of $50 per month without having to appeal and submit documentation of pre- or post-disaster housing costs.

Occupants with household incomes above the HUD very low-income limit will only have to provide documentation of post-disaster housing costs for FEMA to evaluate the amount of rent to be charged based on their financial ability.

FEMA will conduct outreach to assist occupants of temporary housing units with the documentation necessary to evaluate their ability to pay. This effort is designed to reduce the need for occupants to appeal the rent amount determined by FEMA.

CDPJ leader Yoshihiko Noda, a former prime minister who became the party's leader in late September, said he will hold "sincere" discussions with other opposition parties in the run-up to the special Diet session.

Yuichiro Tamaki, leader of the Democratic Party for the People, initially assured Yoshino that his political group will not join the LDP-Komeito coalition. His party and the CDPJ are both offshoots of the now-defunct Democratic Party of Japan.

After the talks, however, Tamaki told reporters that his party is open to policy coordination discussions with other parties, including the LDP and the CDPJ, adding that he plans to vote for himself in the session rather than for Noda.

摂南大陸上競技部ヘッドコーチ 竹澤 健介 さん(37)

上 駅伝の全国大会出場目指し

たけざわ・けんすけ 1986年、兵庫県姫路市生まれ。兵庫・報徳学園高時代に全国高校駅伝にも出場。2005年に早大に進学し、1年時から箱根駅伝を走った。大学時代に07年の世界選手権（大阪）と08年北京五輪に出場した。09年に実業団のエスビー食品に進み、10

年の日本選手権の1万5000円で大会初優勝を飾った。13年にエスビー食品が廃部となった後、同年に住友電工に入社し、16年限りで現役引退。大経大陸上競技部ヘッドコーチを経て、22年に摂南大陸上競技部ヘッドコーチ（スポーツ振興センター所属）に就任した。

練習を見つめる竹澤さん。女子部員の強化にも情熱を注いでいる（いづれも鳥越瑞絵撮影）

現役時代は「自ら目標を設定して練習するタイプ」だったように、学生たちが自分の将来を思い描けるように、寄り添っていく方針だ。これまで出会ってきた指導者にも多大な影響を受けてきた。兵庫東姫路市の中学校に通っていたけれど、3年目になって形ができてきた。時間をかけて下地をつくっていきたい。23年春に女子陸上競技部が発足し、今年2月には全国招待大学対抗大会に出場した。対抗大会は男女それぞれ、駅伝の全国大会出場を目標に、学生たちと一緒に汗を流す。16年に現役を引退し、19年から前年の大経大で陸上競技部ヘッドコーチとして指導者の道を歩み始めた。指導者になった頃は新型コロナウイルス禍で大会が開催されなかった。そんな経験があるからこそ、「指導は情熱が一番、愛が一番」と話す。「情熱があるところに仲間が集まる」。大学の陸上界は関東に強豪選手が集まる。東高西低の傾向もあるが、「熱意は競技レベルには関係ない」と、きっぱり言い切る。

陸上男子長距離で活躍し、早大時代に2008年北京五輪にも出場した竹澤健介さん(37)。現在は摂南大学（大阪府寝屋川市）で陸上競技部ヘッドコーチを務める。幼い頃から憧れていた東京箱根間往復大学駅伝（箱根駅伝）に出場するなど、自ら掲げた目標に向かって走り続けた現役時代を振り返りながら、指導者としては「やっぱり情熱が一番。そこに競技レベルは関係ない」と力を込める。

裏金響く、石破首相に責任論

女性の出選者は57人となり過去最多となった。裏金事件を受けた政治改革の在り方や物価高に対応する経済対策が争点となり、首相の下での自公連立政権に対する信任が問われた。首相は与党で過半数確保を勝敗ラインに位置付けた。自民党の閣内経験者は「与党で過半数を取れないのは首相の責任」と指摘した。首相は民放番組で政権維持に意欲を示した。「われわれ
